Remembering Judge Willie Lovett, Jr.

A Message from John A. Tuell, Executive Director

On January 30, 2017 we unexpectedly and tragically lost a tremendous friend and colleague, the Honorable Willie Lovett, Jr., a revered and respected Judge in the Fulton County, GA Juvenile Court. I met Willie Lovett nearly three years ago in the course of launching our Dual Status Youth partnership initiative with the terrific youth-serving professionals in Fulton County. It was one of his many successful leadership efforts that demonstrated his tireless commitment and devotion to improving the lives of youth and families in Fulton County and throughout Georgia.

He was intellectually brilliant, but completely unpretentious. He was a fierce champion and all of his colleagues respected him personally and professionally. He became a part of the RFK National Resource Center's Dual Status Youth Practice Network and instantly gained admiration for his contribution, collegiality, leadership and dedication to youth. He was so much more that cannot be captured by my words. The difficult truth is that his grace, leadership, passion, impact and friendship will be missed every day going forward. For those who had the privilege of knowing him our comfort must come from another truth - we will be touched by his extraordinary spirit within us forever.

Our thoughts and prayers are with his family, friends and colleagues.

New Resources Help Translate Juvenile Justice Research into Practice

The Council of State Governments (CSG) Justice Center recently published the Juvenile Justice Research-to-Practice Implementation Resources, with support from the U.S. Department of Justice's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. These online resources provide juvenile justice agency managers, staff, and other practitioners with concrete strategies, tools, examples, and best-practice models to help them implement research-based policies and practices and improve outcomes for youth in the juvenile justice system.

The resources, organized by common challenges for juvenile justice programs and agencies, draw from the expertise of researchers and the promising practices identified by practitioners around the country. Each resource offers methods to address those common challenges, specifically in the areas of Family Engagement and Involvement and Evidence-Based Programs and Services.

About Us

Robert F. Kennedy National Resource Center for Juvenile Justice, led by Robert F. Kennedy Children's Action Corps, uses proven models, frameworks, tools, resources and the best available research to serve local, state, and national leaders, practitioners and youth-serving agencies to improve system performance and outcomes for youth involved with the juvenile justice system. RFK National Resource Center focuses primarily on youth with prior or current involvement in both the child welfare and juvenile justice systems (dual status youth), the review and improvement of juvenile probation systems, and the use of a model framework to address the state and national laws and policies governing the exchange and sharing of data, information, and records for youth and families.
