Structural Core Components

Single Point of Contact

Centralized, coordinated point of contact for youth who are struggling at home, community, or school or at-risk of systems involvement to identify opportunities

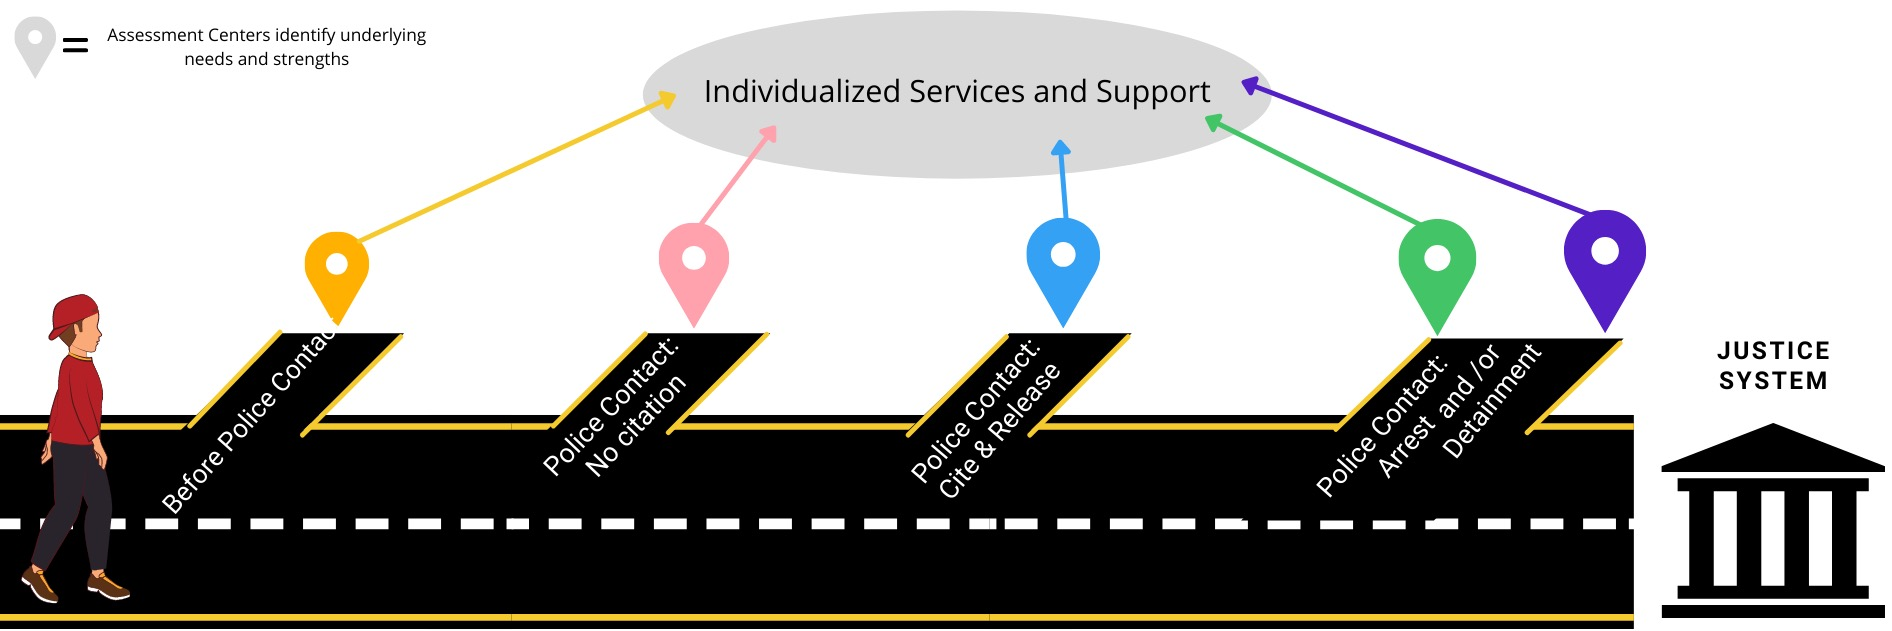

How do kids and families access services?

Establishing “point of contact”

- Critical Intervention Mapping (CIM) with community consensus
 - Community is defined as systems, organizations, leaders, youth, and families that represent the community the Assessment Center serves.
 - CIM focuses on community-based ways to respond to youth getting involved in the juvenile justice system and focuses on supporting and making connections and partnerships in the community.
 - Current practices are mapped out
 - Community services and supports are mapped out.
 - Opportunities to intervene are identified.
 - Chances to identify and respond to youth needs are documented in an action plan.
 - Opportunities to take advantage of or create additional resources are captured in an action plan.

- For youth arrested and/or detained Assessment Centers can aid in the decision of whether formal processing would neither make the public safer nor benefit the young person thus pursuing diversion
- For those moving into the formal justice system, Centers can aid in quicker connection to community services/supports

The Benefit of Neutrality

Assessment Centers serve as a bridge to services and supports from multiple agencies through the creation of an actual or virtual single point of contact for services and supports.

and reason

- Purpose:
 1. Awareness and outreach efforts
 2. Identification of disproportionality and disparate treatment

Screening Vs. Assessment

Screening

- Structured, formal, validated
- Determines immediate attention and need
- Possible presence of a problem
- Determines need for more comprehensive assessment

Assessment

- Comprehensive
- Examination of psychosocial needs
- Uses collateral information
- Determines recommendations for treatment, services, or resources
- More specialized staff

GOAL: Deescalate current crisis and provide comprehensive screening to identify immediate needs and areas for future assessment.

GOAL: Accurately identify youth and family strengths and needs to make data driven decisions on the right services, for the right clients, at the earliest time.

Screening Topics

- Basic Needs
- Commercial sex or labor exploitation (Human Trafficking)
- Community Safety
- Mental/Behavioral Health

Rationale for Topic Domains

What information do we want to gain from the screening process?

Why do we need to know this to assist in decision-making?

What will we do with the information gathered from the screening process?

Case Management

Case Management is a collaborative, strength-based process aimed at ensuring the needs of youth and families identified in the screening and assessment process are met. To achieve this, Assessment Centers utilize one or more of the following approaches:

- Referral & Information Sharing - Informed from screening, Assessment Center makes referrals to community-based providers or system partners who can provide a comprehensive assessment of strengths and needs. In this approach, Assessment Centers have strong communication with partners to ensure information from the screening and assessment is received to inform an individualized plan and a case management process can be initiated.
- Comprehensive Case Management - Comprehensive case management is provided by Tier II Assessment Centers only. It requires an individualized plan that is developed with youth and families and outlines the support and services recommended. Comprehensive case management may include remote/virtual or face-to-face contacts, home visits, and accompaniment of youth and families to providers where necessary to ensure access. Contact and monitoring is made to follow up and determine the status of service and support referrals and to assess whether the youth and family has further needs. Depending on needs, contact and monitoring may be frequent and proactive in order to anticipate problems, stabilize, prevent crises, and support in achieving plan goals.

I really loved JAC staff. I felt like they listened to me I really got their trust and they got mine. I'm really looking forward to talking to her again.

It was really nice to have someone whom doesn't ignore me and actually considers my feelings.

Thanks for being nice and listening to what I had to say.

Thank you for truly listening to me and honestly letting me vent. I will leave here with a huge weight off my shoulder.
